Flat vs Elevated

Our elevated, 3D ink offers a tactile experience that provides both a visual and sensory journey, often appearing different from various angles due to its depth.

In contrast, flat art prints are most like a traditional print: two-dimensional images with a smooth surface.

About Us

When we started Fire & Pine in 2016, there were only a handful of us working out of a small part of a warehouse. Today, we are a team of 24 artisans working from a full-scale production facility in Ridgeland, South Carolina, along with our Flagship Retail Store at the esteemed Coligny Plaza in Hilton Head Island, South Carolina.

Our unique burning process creates decorative wall maps, intricate U.S. patents and custom-designed wood artwork for customers in all 50 states and internationally. We've grown rapidly, continually adding new products to the Fire & Pine brand and increasing production output.

None of this would be possible without a fantastic team of creative professionals who take pride in the art of woodworking. Thanks to the support of our local community — and you! — our team is continuously innovating. The fact that we get to have so much fun while we work is an awesome added bonus.
